cities, and now that the plans have progressed far enough, the details have been given to the public for the first time. An organization to be known as the Western Racing association has been formed including the following towns: Sacramento, Salt Lake, Denver. Butte, Anaconda, Great Falls, Spokane, Seattle and Portland, and it is proposed to hold spring and fall meetings of at least ten days duration in each one of these places.

The Western association is backed by San Francisco parties, with plenty of capital behind them to insure its success. Zeke Abrams, one of the best known followers of the turf and race meeting promoter, is acting as the representative of the new association and for the past several days has been in Salt Lake working up this end of the circuit. Yesterday he closed a contract with M. E. Mulvey of this city to handle Salt Lake's interest in the new association, after which he departed for his home in San Francisco.
